

REVISITING GEORGE WASHINGTON'S ASSAULT ON THE HAUDENOSAUNEE 240 YEAR LATER

A VIRTUAL PANEL DISCUSSION

The Sullivan-Clinton campaign, an attack on the Haudenosaunee by General George Washington 240 years ago, was the largest assault on Native nations in US history. Drawing from Indigenous perspectives to challenge settler-colonial narratives, speakers discuss land theft, broken treaties, and attacks on Haudenosaunee sovereignty to show how this historical trauma lives on and informs contemporary xenophobia, racism, and sexism.

Panelists include Alyssa Mt. Pleasant, Andrea Lynn Smith, Jake Haiwhagai'i Edwards, and Robert Venables. Philip P. Arnold will facilitate the discussion.
